

I'm not robot

Continue

Worlds unanswered questions funny

It is human nature to ask questions. We are a curious species that drives us to discover and learn everything around us. Throughout human history, we have come up with every question you might ask, and we have answered many of them. But several hundred others remain unanswered, and unfortunately it seems that they will remain so until people cease to exist. If you're just like the rest of us, you might find it interesting to play around with a few confusing questions every now and then. Challenge your understanding and that of your family and friends by overcoming these questions that will mess with your mind the next time you meet. Mind Blowing QuestionsWe try to learn the truth, but there are some truths that are so hard to discover that our human logic does not calculate the right understanding. So we end up leaving these questions unanswered, hoping that one day the development of human intelligence – or perhaps even divine intervention – will give us the answers and help us better understand the realities around us. When did time begin? Have we invented or discovered mathematics? Where does a thought go when it is forgotten? Do we have free will or is everything predestined? Is there a life after death? Is it really possible to experience something objectively? What are dreams? What is the goal of humanity? How long will you be remembered after the day you die? Which orange came first – the fruit or the color? What is God? Who has decided what is right and wrong? What is the purpose of setting goals when we all die anyway? What is freedom and does it really give? What came first – the chicken or the egg? What makes you, you? What age should a person be considered old enough to die in old age? How do you know you're not crazy and just hallucinate your whole life? To what extent could you control the course of your life? Is the earth alive? Is it possible to know what is really good and what is evil? If we learn from our mistakes and improve, why are we so afraid to make mistakes? Do you ever do anything of your own conscious choice, or are we always controlled by an external stimulation or a motif? Why are you here at this moment in your life? Did you get to that point in your life because you wanted it or because you were destined to be here? Are soulmates a real thing? If we have to follow the rules at all costs, why do we make exceptions to these rules? Is there an end to the universe, or is it just going on? Why is there something? What is the purpose and meaning of time? Have our human achievements achieved a long-term, universal or when the world ends, do we all end up with it, including what we have achieved? Why do people have to die? More confusing questionsWhile the initial list of questions examines more provocative, deep contemplation, these confusing questions may not feel urgent or important. But the confusion they cause can make them a big talking point when want to keep your family and friends busy with debates about your next meeting. If you punch yourself and it hurts, do you wear or are you strong? Why is preemie, when a premature baby is born earlier than a full-time baby, considered to be older, even though it exists for a shorter period of time? If you have taken a ship and replaced all its parts until none of the original parts are still intact, is it the same ship or a completely different ship? What is the shape of your field of vision? If you describe something as indescribable, haven't you already described it? Are we living or are we dying slowly? Isn't good health just a slower rate to die at? What do people who are born deaf hear when they think? How far do people go when they wash their face? If a person dies at sea and only their arm is recovered, how would he be displayed in a coffin? Does it have to be a full-size large casket? If a baby's butt jumps out of the mother at 11:59 p.m. and the head comes out at 12:01, what day is the baby declared to be born? What do they call French kissing in France? If killing people is wrong, why are we killing people? If you try to fail and you are successful, have you done it or have you succeeded? If you expect the unexpected, doesn't that make you expect the unexpected? How is it possible that the world is in debt? How important must one be to be considered murdered and not just murdered? When you go to heaven, do you look like you are at the age you die? Why do people say they slept like a baby when they slept through the night, when babies are known not to sleep? Why is the alphabetical order so? Who said that's the order it had to be? Why is Goofy considered one person and Pluto a pet when they are both dogs? Can the blind dream? Why does the glue not stick to the inside of the bottle? If they say something is new and improved, how can it be improved if it is new? What is it improving? Why is golf's goal the least golfing? When a vampire bites a zombie, does the zombie become a vampire or does the vampire become a zombie? If God had created Adam and Eve, would they have belly buttons? Why do we beat each other up when we like something? (Clapping) Why do we base our age on the number of times we went around a burning gas ball? How do you know that you see colors the same way that someone else sees them? For example, what if what is red for you is blue for them, but they still call it red? Is your answer to this question no? Which letter is silent in the word fragrance? S or C?Is the word queue not the letter Q followed by four silent letters? What would a room of mirrors look like if there was nothing in that room to create a reflection? Was there ever a time when there was nothing or there was always something? If a cyclone were to close its eye, would it wink or blink? Is a body transplant exactly the same as a brain transplant? What is the a mirror? If you had fun while wasting time, can you still say you wasted time? Which armrest is yours in the cinema? Do dentists go to other dentists or do they treat their own dental care problems? How far do you have to go east before you go west? If you were to dig a hole that went through the center of the earth and you jumped through, would you fall or float upwards? Where do they put the Bible in libraries – fiction or nonfiction? What happens when an immovable object encounters an unstoppable force? What would happen to the world's oceans if every person on Earth jumped into the water at the same time? When does it stop being partly sunny and will be partly cloudy? Why is vanilla ice cream color white when vanilla itself is color brown? Funny Unanswerable QuestionsHey, just because a question doesn't seem to have an answer to it doesn't mean it has to be serious. There are many funny unanswerable questions out there that can give you a good laugh and start a lot of light-hearted banter between you and friends. Try to throw these funny, insane questions around to start the laughs. Can children who play in R-rated movies watch the film when it's done? Do you consider eyebrows facial hair? If you were shorter than someone, would it be possible to talk to them? What hair color do they put in the driver's license of bald people? Do prison buses have emergency exits? Can you stand backwards on a staircase? Are they still burying people with their suspenders or removing them? Why did they include the word dictionary in the dictionary? What do you call a fly without wings? Why do we cook bacon and bake biscuits? How to grow a seedless fruit? If tomatoes are a fruit, is ketchup considered a smoothie? If they had a dream that none of your dreams would come true, and you woke up and didn't make any of your real dreams come true, would that be a dream come true? If you were to tell someone to be a leader, not a supporter, wouldn't they become a follower by following your advice? When everyone says that life is unjust, does that not mean that life is fair? If the early bird gets the worm, why do you get good to those who wait? If you hate haters, does that make you a hater and will you hate yourself? What would happen if Pinocchio said: My nose will grow now? If the Fountain of Youth can make you live forever, can you drown in it and still die? If Cinderella's shoe matched her perfectly, why did he fall off? Who taught the first teacher? If nothing is impossible, would it be possible for something to be impossible? Why run wet, but smell the feet? Why do they say you have a cold when your temperature If you drop your soap to the floor, will the bottom become clean or does the soap get dirty? Is it not the case that if you wait for the waiter to return with your order, you become the waiter in this process? If you buy something that is made in China while you are in China, it does have the made in China day? If the number 2 pencil is the most popular, why is it number 2? What was the first man to try to milk a cow? If a word in the dictionary is misspelled, will we ever know? Do caterpillars know they will be butterflies, or do they build the cocoon without knowing what will happen? If God sneeve, what would you say? If we've evolved from monkeys, why are there still monkeys? When life is so short, why do we do things that we don't like and that like so many things that we don't? Would you have said more than you did when everything was said and done? When a tree falls into a forest and no one is there to hear it, does it make a sound? How did the person who invented the calendar know what day it was? Why did we decide to give February only 28 days when many other months have 31 days? Wouldn't we have just taken some of the 31 days from other months and brought them into February? If revenge is a dish that is best served cold, and revenge is sweet, then revenge is ice? Why are they called buildings when they are already built? Built?